BANK BURGLARS AT FLUSHING.

Entered the Dollar Savings Bank, but Got Nothing.

Burglars entered the Dollar Savings Bank, at Flushing, Ohio, Monday night, blowing open the outer door of the safe, but the inner door was not opened and the money chest was undisturbed. The fellows were evidently frightened away, presumably by the noise the explosion created, although the explosion was not heard by people living nearby. As fresh buggy tracks were discovered in front of the bank, it is supposed the burglars rode to and from the bank. The wheel tracks were traced to the cannery factory in another part of the town. Two strangers, who were seen in the town with a two-horse rig Monday afternoon, are suspected as being the cracksmen by Flushing people. Every effort to locate them is being made.

Meeting of Undertakers.

Remard, of New York, one of the leading embalming experts in the country; J. W. Phillips, of Oak Forest, Pa.; A. H. Limerick, of Wadestown; F. S. Brownlee, of West Middletown, Pa.; J. D. Johnson, of Tallyho, W. Va.; E. L. Stealy, of Charleston; W. S. Osborn, of Charleston; W. A. Boyd, of Jewett, O.; Wesley Kelly, of Pittsburgh; A. W. THE STATE RESTS

The Testimony for Prosecution Completed in the Driller Trial.

WATKINS, THE STAR WITNESS.

He Alleges that Driller Described How He Beat Louis Dittmore on a Houseboat Near West Wheeling. Mrs. Parker Disclosed Little that Was Material—Will be a Comparatively Brief Murder Trial.

Just before the adjournment of the criminal court yesterday at 5 p. m., the state rested its case against Joseph ("Fatty") Driller, charged with the murder of Louis Dittmore, on a houseboat near West Wheeling, July 4, last year. It is possible that the defense will put on all its witnesses to-day, hence the jury may get the case Wednesday evening, which will be pretty quick work for a murder trial. This is the second trial Driller has had, the jury disagreeing in the former.

The most important witness of the day was John R. Watkins, who purchased from Driller the houseboat in question. Watkins said he came from Washington, Pa., to Wheeling on July 3, 1899, to buy a houseboat, and the next day he inspected the one inhabited by Driller and Mrs. Parker, and which is alleged belonged to Dittmore. The witness said that when he visited the boat, Mrs. Parker had a black eye, which Driller said he gave her, but the woman contradicted him and said "Ditt" did it. Watkins, continuing his story, said that Driller told him that on the previous night, when he returned to the boat from a short absence and found Mrs. Parker with the black eye, he accused Dittmore of having inflicted it, but this Dittmore denied, whereupon Driller said to the witness: "I smashed him and knocked him into the river, and smashed him and smashed him again." Driller claimed to be the owner of the boat and sold it to the witness, the bill of sale being made out before Squire Greer in the latter's office.

Watkins said that Driller bought a keg of beer after the sale and conveyed it to the boat where an orgie followed, in which a tramp joined. He said there were a number of tools on the boat, including a sledge.

Alfred Nichols and August Friedrichs testified to visiting the boat on the night of July 4, and of Driller saying that he hadn't seen Dittmore since noon of that day.

Squire Greer said that he made out the bill of sale, and that Driller appeared to be anxious and hurried at the time.

William Miller said he saw Driller and Mrs. Parker leave the houseboat in a john-boat on the night of July 4.

Mr. and Mrs. Metzger, the latter a sister of Dittmore, testified as to the deceased's appearance when they last saw him at their home, on the afternoon of July 3.

Mrs. Parker denied having said to Watkins that "Ditt" gave her the black eye, and she maintained that Driller discolored her optic. To Mr. Meyer, Mrs. Parker gave her answers in a low tone of voice and there was a perceptible clearness of enunciation when cross-examined by the attorney for the defense, Mr. Boyce. Mrs. Parker was unable to recall clearly the route taken by her and Driller after they left the boat, or certain points pertaining to the night of July 4.

Scott Davis said that he ferried Driller and his companion to the houseboat on Sunday night, July 2.

Officers Meyer and Larkin told of arresting Driller and Mrs. Parker. Prosecuting Attorney Meyer is assisted in conducting the state's case by Mr. John A. Howard; the attorneys for the defense are Messrs. S. O. Boyce and John B. Wilson.
